Appealed by the power of emotions expressed by a look, Asaz One has quickly chosen to work on realist portrait. Handling airbrush has first permitted to obtain fine details, then he has taken it to bigger surfaces thanks to sprays.

To be close to each of his subject is essential to Asaz. Cultural sharing with local people drives his inspiration when he paints portraits all over the world. Despite his young age, he has already had the opportunity to participate to festivals in Kosovo, Chile, Italy and in his home town, Grenoble, for the Street Art Festival.

Asaz works on the ability to differentiate pictures and words by the insertion of portraits into sayings and metaphors. The subject makes the physical experience of an optical illusion because the eye copes with the visible and the legible simultaneously. To look carefully at the painting avoids reading words ; on the other hand, reading the metaphor prevents the eye from gazing at the portrait details.

Thanks to a poetic game between interlaced letters and eyes intensity, words, tools and medium of expression learned through the education, are united with natural emotions perceptible on faces.
